LIMITLESS SLIP DOME (51) Limitless Slip Dome Collective

There are many worlds. They exist along side each other, just beyond our perceptions. Membranes, thin as the lightest silk separates them, preserving order, allowing our lives to glide gently over those elsewhere. On rare occasions, the barrier weakens, and one dimension slips into another. We found such a spot, stabilised it, and wrestled it under our control. We don't know how much longer we can sustain it. Come gaze upon this wonder. There's also some flashing lights. Yeah.

THE LIVING ROOM (50) The Happy Homies

Dial in to the telephone exchange for various phone services (weather, joke, confession, sex, information lines)

OBSCURA 2010 (2) Dix Collective

The artwork was born out of creating the ideal plaything on a playground - a rocket. Who wouldn't want to have a chance to climb into a rocket And the most simple and beautiful rocket is the Tintin rocket Herge developed the rocket to bring a sci-fi element to his series. He juxtaposed it with playfulness to make it relevant to his reader. Similarly, we love the clean starkness of the rocket against the aritty background of the desert and the Burn. We love the contrast of the sci-fi-ness of it in the aroundedness of many of the other themes/artworks We love the playfulness of the rocket in context of the Burn And we love the unexpectedness we will create on the inside. The red and white checker pattern rocket was based upon an illustration of a V-2 rocket developed by the Germans.

involves the whole Binnekring. We will work together with camp anvil (Charl Bothma) and you (AB org.) Join us for sunset, when a drop or two of Tequila will be served. Otherwise, lift your feet, sit back in a softcushioned cactus and enjoy the view.

SUCLEUS (49) Tank and Gypsies

The structure is a projection of the melting pot of elements that flood the inner human space, manifested in an electron path circling a nucleus. Comprised of an arch made from shards of palette wood aggressively pieced together with doorways on each side, two painted hands placed in top, forming the top of the arch. Hanging freely in the centre is Suzi, a uncontrolled wind-driven nucleus. We can touch her, see her from every angle, spin her and interact with her mesmerising nature. She is the core of us all, the quiet spinning, energetic centre that sits in us, resting and flowing with the elements. She is at all times accessible but is placed in the structure of cyclic pace and strife, ambition and difficulty.

TEMPLE //XAM (25) The Dandylions / Kim Goodwin

The Temple //Xam honours the first human beings, who lived and survived in the Tankwa region, and who were, over a period, eradicated from this land. We want to use this opportunity to bring attention to their beauty, wisdom and stories, that , in a profound way, still affects and informs the soul of the Southern African region, our homeland. As the festival evolves, we will gather at the Temple and share stories and readings, not only of the //Xam. but including all the indigenous people of South Africa and beyond, whose cultures and identities are facing oppression and possible extinction. The Dandylion crew will be working for a month in the Tankwa, bending and weaving wattle. drawing inspiration from the first humans, who played and danced and hunted and told stories under the Karoo skies and starscapes. The design/esthetics of the Temple in no way or form, attempts to symbolize or represent //Xam Bushman culture and traditions.

THE MOMENT (63) Sasha Mironov, Sema Payain & Own Way Team

In our art we think about this 'Moment X' - a milestone between the past and the future. We see it as birth. A huge Egg made of wood with lots of cracks - the miracle is just about to happen. The Egg is in the air, supported by 9 wooden tendons stretching from the around in an effort to hold it together but the process has already begun. And it will be complete in the end of the festival.

TIFFANY TWISTED (36) There Will Be Geeks Again

Tossed aside by a spurned fiancée with a larger than average ring size. Tiffany is a scaled up, organic interpretation of its diamond and gold cousins. Modelled on the traditional solitaire. the twisting band forms a möbius strip while the stone offers a literal canvas upon which burners can vent their creativity. Debuting the warped minds of a computer programmer (father) and iewellerv designer (daughter) combo from sunny England, Tiffany is a complicated combination of impossible angles and impractical intersections.

TOWER IN THE SKY (4) The Messenaers

WEEF | WEAVING (37) Yolandi Maritz-Vermeulen

An installation that is interactive. The artwork starts out as a blank canvas, and needs individuals to take part and help create the artwork through weaving. From weaving what you see. feel or experienced the outcome is purely a representation of the landscape and the surrounding artworks and people. The idea is to create a visual experience of one's time in the Karoo

WER1 (10)

In the first phase "WE" are four individual entities with a common inward focus where the centre of the linking beams of laser light meet. The facial individuality is defined by generation and dender: a young female face, a young male face. an old female face, and an old male face. The voung female looks at the old female, while the voung male, looks at the old male. This creates a sense of dialogue between the faces. transcending age and gender, and denotes a process of looking to the past and looking to the future. The placing of the four faces in the first phase: Placing two faces in the Binnekring and two faces on the Theme tent side of Binnekring road, allows an opportunity "crossover ", a perceived division or "barrier" between one zone and another. Crossing over the road exaggerates the idea of "We are One" by transcending division between the "WE" - The linking of the faces with lazers and crossing in the centre of the road allows for this transition. In the second phase the four different "WE" entities become "ONE" unified entity with an outward, infinite and shared goal for the future. A single "Head" with four faces is demonstrative of a cross-generational and cross-gender being Finally, the head is burned.
